WRANGELL'S GINSENG FARM BIG SUCCESS

New and Profitable Industry Being Introduced in the North by W. E. Parrott

Story of Curious Plant
Reads Like a Romance

A new and profitable industry is being introduced in the North by W. E. Parrott of Wrangell, who has the only ginseng farm in Alaska.

The other day the reporter met Mr. Parrott in the express office where he was making a shipment of ginseng to New York. The little shipment amounted to only 18 pounds, but it will net Mr. Parrott $180, the price paid being $10 per pound.

It is now almost six years since Mr. Parrott put in his ginseng farm on Sergief island, near Wrangell. He has the plants in beds 190 feet long and six feet wide. The paths between the beds are two feet wide, and eight inches deep, which form a drain for the beds. In the beds the rows are 12 inches apart, while the plants are 10 inches apart. When the foliage is on the beds are almost covered. In the whole vegetable kingdom it is doubtful if there is another plant that has more pronounced characteristics, and there is probably no other plant with so many peculiarities.

Ginseng grows wild in certain regions touched by the Allegheny mountains, and also in Canada, but in the States the plant is becoming more scarce all the time owing to persistent hunting, and more land being utilized all the time for agricultural purposes.

Mr. Parrott first got the idea that ginseng of a superior quality could be grown in Alaska from a perusal of a fur dealers' price list which quoted a higher price for ginseng grown in Quebec than that grown in the Alleghenies.

History and science have their romances as vivid and fascinating as any in the realms of fiction. No story ever told surpasses in interest the history of this mysterious plant, ginseng, the root that for nearly 200 years has been an important article of export to China.

In America ginseng is known to possess certain medicinal properties. However, the demand for it at home is very limited. But the Chinese attribute medicinal properties to ginseng to a degree that is little, if any, less than superstition. Millions of Chinese have for thousands of years boiled ginseng in silver cups and praised high heaven for its benefits, believing that it renovates and reinvigorates failing forces.

Until a few years ago not one in a hundred intelligent Americans living in cities and towns ever heard of the plant, and those in the wilder parts of the country who dug and sold the roots could tell nothing of its history and use. Their forefathers had dug and sold ginseng. They merely followed the old custom.

How this odd commerce with China arose is in itself remarkable. Many years ago, Father Jartoux, a Catholic priest, one who had long served in China, came to the Canadian frontier as a missionary. Here in the wilds of the forests he noted a plant bearing a close resemblance to one much used and valued as a medicine by the Chinese. A few roots were gathered and sent as a sample to China. Many months later the ships brought back the welcome news that the Chinese would buy the roots.

One of our consuls in China recently furnished the Government with a report of the high value of ginseng and its universal use in the "Flowery Kingdom." America supplies but a very small part indeed, of the ginseng used in China. What the Chinese consider the highest grade of ginseng is grown in a small area in China. This sells for from $100 to $200 a pound, and its use is limited to royalty and the upper circle of China's Four Hundred. The next grade comes from Korea and Manchuria and is valued at from $30 to $50 a pound. The third grade comes from America and is valued at from $15 to $35 a pound. The fourth grade comes from Japan and is used by those who can do no better. Ginseng of some grade is used by every one of China's swarming millions who can possibly raise the price.

The importations by the Chinese of the American product are increasing every year and the business gives every indication of becoming a very large one in a short time. The importations through the port of Hongkong alone are almost $100,000 a year. There are a number of Chinese collecting buyers in New York, Cincinnati and other cities. The roots are exported to China in air-tight casks in weight of about 100 pounds.

Early in the history of this commerce with China the value of ginseng as a cultivated crop was recognized, and repeated efforts were made to propagate it, but without success at that time. Many failures led to the belief that ginseng could not be grown. It was only in recent years that experienced gardeners discovered that in growing ginseng success hinged largely on shading.

Mr. Parrott says that the ginseng grower should ever bear in mind that this plant is a native of the forest, and that in its cultivation the grower must approach forest conditions as nearly as possible. In the forest the shade is high up above the ginseng, causing the little plants to be in cool shade, the trees draining off the moisture by their millions of small roots constantly drawing the water up from them for their own use. Wild ginseng is never found except in dry, shady spots. Unlike pond lilies it cannot stand wet feet. It thrives best in a temperature below 65 degrees. The ginseng grown cannot depend on shade alone to keep the temperature below 65 degrees—the shade would have to be almost total. In order to allow sufficient light, and yet keep the temperature down, the ground must be covered with a little mulch. The mulch is as essential to the health and growth of the ginseng plant as clothing is to the comfort and welfare of man. Mr. Parrott uses falling leaves for mulch because that is the kind of mulch nature provides for ginseng when it is growing wild.

A strange characteristic of ginseng is that it takes the seed 18 months to germinate. Another peculiarity which shows that the plant is not of the mushroom variety is the fact that it takes it at least four years to mature sufficiently to place on the market. Experienced growers recommend six years growth before placing on the market. A plant whose seed requires 18 months to germinate might be expected to live to a ripe old age. There have

FIREMEN'S ANNUAL BALL

Takes Place Saturday Night—Charming High School Girls Will Play Most Important Part

The young ladies of the high school will play a very important part in the celebration of Washington's birthday. These charming young ladies will have full charge of the lunch at the Firemen's ball Saturday evening. This means that the guests will have a most sumptuous repast, and also that Wrangell's many promising young men will be afforded an opportunity to sample a choice variety of good cooking from a most delightful variety of sources.

Forest Ranger James Allen and G. D. McDonald of Petersburg were in Wrangell the last of the week.

Miss Crosno, principal of the Wrangell public schools, announces that Friday afternoon will be devoted to singing, and the public is cordially invited.

George H. Barnes of the Alaska Sanitary Packing company returned on the City of Seattle Friday from a business trip to Seattle.

C. E. McKinney who has been residing in Vancouver, Wash., for the past year, returned to Wrangell on the City of Seattle Friday evening. Mrs. McKinney will arrive the latter part of the month. At present she is in Bellingham visiting her daughter, Mrs. W. F. Joslin, nee Miss Katherine McKinney.

The Valdez Miner probably thinks that the Sentinel minimizes local cases of illness to an extent that is almost criminal. Last month the Sentinel stated that W. H. Warren was celebrating the new year by remaining indoors for a few days. This week we received a copy of the Valdez Miner of the issue of January 25 which stated that through private sources it has been learned that W. H. Warren, vice-president of the Bank of Alaska, is lying at the point of death at his home in Wrangell. The "private source" is probably a person who would feel terribly aggrieved if some one should say that he or she exaggerates. Every village has a few earnest souls who never fail to predict a funeral every time any one catches a cold or has the earache.

been ginseng roots found growing wild that were 90 years old. Each year forms a seal on the bud-stalk, and it is in this way that the age of the ginseng root is ascertained. The Chinese consider the older roots of more value than those of tender years, and the Chinese also claim that wild ginseng is superior to the cultivated. But ginseng is shipped to China as ginseng, and no Chinaman has ever been able to tell the wild from the cultivated.

It is now more than five years since Mr. Parrott planted his ginseng seed, and he has never had the least trouble getting the plants to grow. He states that he is thoroughly convinced that the climate of Alaska is ideal for ginseng. In his opinion success in growing the plant in the North depends largely on the selection of ground where the drainage is good, and where it will be possible to give the proper shading. He says that the old saw that "the proof of the pudding is in chewing the bag," may be amply verified by a visit to his farm, and will show how well the theories he has put into practice have worked out.

JOHN BERG AND BRIDE ARE HONORED

Moose Celebrate Marriage of Patriotic Sailor Boy in Appropriate Manner

The Moose meeting last Friday evening was not only a pleasant affair, but a succession of pleasant surprises.

Following the regular lodge meeting there was a social session at which the Moose ladies were present. Cards formed the amusement during the early part of the evening. After prizes were awarded a little matter was attended to which was the principal object for which the social session had been planned.

Last month Mr. John Berg, who had been in the patriotic service of his country, returned from Seattle, bringing with him a bride. Mr. Berg's Moose friends felt that his return home from military service, together with his marriage, warranted some recognition on their part, and so they purchased a gift for him and his wife. This was done early last month, but owing to numerous other attractions the social session was postponed from week to week until last Friday evening. The chairman called upon the lodge secretary to make the presentation speech. Mr. and Mrs. Berg were presented with a handsome set of dishes which came to them as a complete surprise. Mr. Berg made a neat little speech of acceptance in which he expressed the appreciation with which the handsome gift was received.

At the conclusion of Mr. Berg's speech of acceptance the chairman called upon Mr. Warren for a few remarks. Then came another surprise that was even more complete than the first one. Mr. Warren told how the duties of a Moose secretary are by no means light, and how these duties had been increased by hundreds of letters from the various departments of the Government during the war. He stated further that he believed that the secretary's well kept books were to some extent due to the efficient little woman in the background who tells the secretary how to do things. In appreciation of the services, and as a token of good will from the lodge, Mr. and Mrs. Pritchett were then presented with a handsome present which included a collection of dishes, a cut glass bowl, and a most exquisite electric reading lamp. The secretary was taken so completely by surprise that he did not know whether he was going or coming. However, both Mr. and Mrs. Pritchett made an effort to express their great appreciation for such a beautiful expression of good will from the members of such a splendid organization as the Loyal Order of Moose.

By this time the show down stairs was over and the seats were cleared for dancing. When the North Star orchestra began the music there was a general exodus from the upper to the lower hall, and soon almost every one in the building was dancing.

During the evening a most delightful lunch was served. The following committee had charge of this most successful affair: C. C. Mundy, A. Jakobitz and Eugene Mason.

Fanning Not So Bad After All

An illiterate but earnest seeker after knowledge wrote to the query department of a great newspaper to inquire the difference between a taxidermist and a taxicabist. The following answer was published:

"The only difference between a taxidermist and taxicabist is that the former skin only animals and birds while the latter do not care who they skin."

Governor Thos. Riggs has appointed Dr. J. B. Beeson, M. J. Conroy and Danilo Vecutich members of the Anchorage Council of Defense.

NEW HEALTH OFFICER

At the meeting of the town council Thursday evening Dr. S. C. Shurick was appointed town health officer to succeed Dr. C. H. Upton, resigned.

Dr. Shurick left Wrangell in 1917 to enter the service of his country. He received a commission as lieutenant and was stationed at Camp Lewis. A few months later poor health compelled him to give up army life. After recovering from his breakdown Dr. Shurick went to New York City and spent the greater part of last year practicing in the hospitals of the great eastern metropolis. A few weeks ago Dr. and Mrs. Shurick returned to Wrangell. Dr. Shurick has opened an office in the Wrangell hotel. He has the rooms formerly occupied by the Bank of Alaska.

The Wrangell basketball team returned Sunday morning from a rather unlucky trip to the West Coast. The purpose of the trip was to play a return game with the Bayview team. The murder of Clyde Calhoun on Wednesday evening a few minutes before the game was to be called caused the game to be postponed till Friday night. The Wrangell boys then went to Hydraburg where on Thursday night they played the Hydraburg team and got trimmed to the tune of 67 to 12. The local boys say it was a good clean game. They attribute their overwhelming defeat to the small size of the hall in which the game was played. The Wrangell team returned to Bayview Friday, but owing to Peter Jackson having committed suicide that morning the game was again called off. The Wrangell boys were disappointed in not getting to play a return game with Bayview, but they fully realize that under the circumstances the Bayview boys were justified in calling off the game.

Commercial Club Organized at Craig

A Commercial Club was organized Saturday night at Craig. C. E. Hibbs was elected president, F. Becker secretary and John Smith Treasurer.

Wanted: More women to sew for the Red Cross, from 2 to 4, once or twice a week at the hall or at home. The local chapter has about 150 garments on hand, for refugees and for the hospitals, which must be made as soon as possible. If you have helped before, will you do so again? If not it is not too late to begin. The war is practically over but Red Cross work will continue for some time and as long as allotments are received, workers will be needed. The hall is open Tuesday and Friday afternoons, 2 to 4. Chapter Production Committee.

Ernest M. Campbell who made ten round trips to France on the U.S. Transport "Northern Pacific" is now aboard the U.S.S. "Iowan." Ernest was on a furlough at the time the "Northern Pacific" was wrecked near New York harbor.

H. J. Palmer, a former resident of Wrangell, who left here four years ago, arrived on the City of Seattle Friday evening. Since leaving Wrangell Mr. Palmer has been engaged in the mercantile business in Anacortes. Last month he sold out his business in that city, and is north on a vacation. He was connected with the St. Michael Trading Company of Wrangell two years.

C. M. Coulter received a cablegram Wednesday announcing that his son Harry Coulter, would receive his discharge at once. Harry is now stationed at Ft. Seward. He will return to Wrangell on the City of Seattle early in the week.

Mrs. A. M. Rousseau and Miss Henrietta Rousseau of Whitehorse were aboard the City of Seattle Friday evening. They were returning north from a visit of several months with relatives on the Sound. While the vessel was in port they visited with Mrs. F. Matheson. Mrs. Rousseau is the wife of the publisher of the "Whitehorse Star."

Intended To Show Something of What Is Going On In the Great Northland

Mushers for many years have been crossing huskies with wolves, St. Bernards, with wolves and different species with other dogs in the hope of learning which could stand the climate with most success.

A severe windstorm recently visited Anchorage which was said to be the worst ever known. The large warehouse of Brown & Hawkins was blown over and is a complete wreck. A large amount of merchandise was stored in the building which was uninjured.

Mrs. Frank H. Waskey, wife of Alaska's first delegate to congress, has sued her husband for divorce, according to Seattle papers. The couple were married at Nome in 1904. Mrs. Waskey has been living with relatives in Seattle and Mr. Waskey is reported to be at some point on the lower Yukon.

Alaska Natives are becoming alarmed over the rapid growth of the Territory's ever-increasing canine population. A Native council at Hoonah, an Indian village near Juneau, recently passed an ordinance levying a tax on all dogs in the village. The marshal was instructed to shoot all unlicensed canines.

W. J. Vachon, who has a trading post and roadhouse on the Tanana river, near the mouth of the Tolovna river imported a pair of Togenburg goats recently by way of experiment, says that his herd has been increased by the arrival of a healthy and husky kid, which was born to Mamma and Papa goat a short time ago.

A sourdough who has been in San Francisco writes back to Alaska friends as follows: "The churches are closed, the saloons are open and the women are muzzled." This was written while the flu epidemic was on there and the flu masks were worn.

The report that the traveler between Seward and Anchorage is compelled to go between the two terminals by dog team after the vast amount of money spent to build the Government railroad is not encouraging to say the least. If winter traffic over the road cannot be kept up it will be of very little use during the summer months. —Valdez Miner.

BOLSHEVISM IS ANARCHY

Anarchism and bolshevism are synonymous terms.
The American people do not want to consort with anarchy, and this applies to all classes of the American people.
But anarchy is dangerous when it comes masquerading under a new and mysterious name that is not generally understood.
The so-called bolshevism that is today rampant in Russia is simply the wildest kind of anarchy, and the spirit that creates it is spreading throughout the world. It is found in what was Austria, in Germany, in the Balkans, in Italy, in France, in England, and even in America.
The press of America, and especially the press of the smaller cities and towns, can do much to prevent the spread of this terror by simply calling it by its right name. If the editors of America will use the terms anarchists and anarchy instead of bolsheviks and bolshevism they will do much toward keeping this country of ours a safe and desirable place in which to live.
Let us all do what we can to tear the sheep's clothing from this Russian wolf that is seeking to devour the civilization of the world, and whose most insidious and dangerous propaganda is its name.

The Kaiser is now in Dutch with the world.

Peace celebrations also seem to improve with practice.

Even old King Grip seems to be getting ready to abdicate.

But, at that, we can't see where Foch overlooked very much.

Now, then, how long before the hole in the doughnut is made bigger?

A halt has at least been called in the distribution of iron crosses.

The problems that peace will bring are going to call for courage, too.

Society note: Mr. and Mrs. Hohenzollern will not be at home this afternoon.

Yankee guns fired the last shots of the war, so they ended it in more ways than one.

What a beautiful world it is! Victory bread and the official bulletin are discontinued.

In this period of reconstruction the world would appreciate restoration of its equilibrium.

Out of the war has come no great masterpiece of song. But consider the quantity.

We granted peace to Germany, not to the Kaiser. The world is still at war with him.

When our postage stamps change back to pink again, we shall know that the war is really over.

Now it seems that Mr. Hohenzollern is not going to have any nonsense from any source after the war.

Those German junkies will now regret that they taught their people how to hate with such uncton.

Germany must wish now that it had spent the last forty years building up something besides an army.

If Bismarck and the elder Von Moltke could see the scrap pile of what it cost so much to put together!

"Can't tell hippopotamus meat from good pork," says a market report. Imagine trying to carve a baby hippo.

And remember there'll be another big celebration when long lines of khaki-clad veterans come marching home.

We understand now why Von Bernstorff cried when America entered the war. Evidently he knew what was coming.

The best tribute that could be paid to the American soldiers is that the children of France have grown very fond of them.

London is enjoying the luxury of light for the first time in years. London has nothing on the well-known world in this respect.

The Kaiser started the war like a raging lion seeking whom he might devour, and he ended it with running off like a scared rabbit.

Russia Stops Paying Indemnity to Germany.—News dispatch. And there is no sign in the sky that she will ever resume the payments.

The little German children will grow up and become parents of other children, and will teach them that war is brutal and dangerous.

Hindenburg, Ludendorff, Mackensen, Tirpitz and a lot more of them are not nearly such great fellows as they thought themselves to be.

Use of paper underwear is suggested to relieve cloth shortage. So? Then newspapers should be printed on cloth to relieve the paper shortage.

The Kaiser said he would stand no
nonsense from America after the war.
Now Germany is humbly begging
America to have mercy upon her.

Another good thing about this country's having been in the war is that it will avoid becoming the refuge of the Hohenzollern family, late of Germany.

A soldier's duty is to fight, undergo hardship, suffer wounds and die if need be. But isn't it a little too much to expect of him to clean up a Turkish town?

Now that the censorship is lifted, why not send a good reporter to find out the name of that "Atlantic Port" from which all our boys embarked for France?

The influenza germ is so small that it cannot be seen with a microscope.
And yet people have been trying to shut it out by the coarse meshes of a
"flu mask."

If Wilhelm had been a regular man and treated the people of his country and the rest of the world like regular human beings there never would have been any war and he would still be tolding down his job.

It can be said that the soldier who refused to obey an order to mop a hospital floor and got 20 years for his state of mind will have plenty of time to study the elements of democracy and of military discipline.

DR. DAWES TO OPEN HOSPITAL

Doctor L. P. Dawes will, on March 1, open a hospital in the building formerly occupied by the Orpheum Hotel. The new hospital will be in charge of trained nurses from the famous Mayo Hospital at Rochester, Minn.

Doctor Dawes, who will be chief surgeon of the new hospital, aims to make it as perfect in its appointments as possible, and during the coming months the carpenters and other mechanics will make the alterations necessary to turn the building into a first-class hospital, with every modern appliance. —Juneau Dispatch.

Alaska Eskimos, who are not generally known as joiners of the Elks, Eagles, Moose, Owls and other fraternal organizations of the white men, are forming an order of their own, to be known as the Benevolent Order of Reindeer according to The Eskimo, a government school publication issued at Nome. Reindeer herders and owners are directing the formation of the organization and are limiting charter membership to Eskimos in the reindeer business. Later they may admit hunters and trappers. A ritual, grips and secret work are being planned. When the epidemic of influenza abates and meetings are allowed the lodge will meet and adopt constitutions and by-laws. Branch lodges may be established in the Eskimo settlements along the Siberian coast across the Bering sea from Nome. Headquarters will be at Nome it is planned.

Native hunters around Sitka report very few deer killed the past open season and many tables which were wont to be supplied with venison have been entirely without meat. Several explanations are offered for the scarcity of deer. Some attribute it to the long, severe winter of last year when thousands starved to death; others say that the warm fall has enabled the deer to remain far back in the inaccessible parts of the mountains. Others say that the many bear which have roamed the beaches this season have driven the deer away or destroyed them.

The cannery season in Alaska will start earlier this season than it has in previous years, as is indicated by the arrival in the North already of many cannerymen who are going to their various stations to do work in preparation for next season. The steamer Curacao, which came North last week, had aboard very nearly a full cargo of supplies for the various canneries. It is said that cannerymen in general this season will get in readiness earlier than usual, to be prepared to pack the very first run of fish.

Health Sunday

The Government has requested all churches, on February 23, to take for its theme the subject of Public Health and Social Morals.

St. Philip's, Sunday, February 23, 7:30, gladly falls in line with this request.

The Government has figures to show that it is dangerous both to public and private health to allow matters to drift as they are drifting in each "home town." Come and help to create right ideas.

Dan Callahan, who for many years has resided in Fairbanks, suddenly collapsed Saturday night a week ago, and was taken to his home in a serious condition. At present he is able to sit up and receive his friends.

Cordova will have a new salmon cannery this year, the Hinchinbrook Packing company, which will take over the holdings of the Ohm Fish & Packing company.

Also the war has put a damper on the royal carriage market.

The world certainly does not intend to be caught napping again.

The Spanish flu was bad enough, but spare us the plague of bolshevism.

The armistice, however, came too late to save the college football season.

It's a little early to be talking about the possibility of a world's series next year.

Revolution is apparently so easy that the Germans ought to have managed one long ago.

It is easy to guess who will be ranked as the world's greatest general by future historians.

The war is over, but there is still so much war work to be done that nobody loves a slacker.

For some families, use of the full four-pound sugar allotment would be wasteful extravagance.

Mr. Hohenzollern calls himself Count William. The rest of the world will call him no account.

Peace should not lessen the ardor of the owners of war gardens. Plan for the usual spring drive in 1919.

Ideas on how to reconstruct the world are no less numerous than those proposed for winning the war.

The danger is that some persons will put their patriotism away just as they have done their summer clothes.

Cigarette stubs led to the arrest of a robber, and yet some folk insist that no good can come from smoking.

It is also easy to foresee that reconstruction is going to be a badly over-used word in the months to come.

Uncle Sam has a lot of friends, and former enemies, over in Europe who will need much help in the next few years.

It will be proper enough to refer to it as the "late war," for we who were late getting into it were the deciding force.

But a radio telephone system between the house and the office might have the same disadvantage as the old party line.

Speaking of kings, the abdication of Albert of Belgium isn't requested by anybody. He's a sort of king of hearts for civilization.

Doctor Self does not seem to know what he wants, except that he does not want to do what the allies have decided he must do.

Deposed royal personages can still gratify their taste for the gorgeous by becoming doormen in the Swiss hotels where they lodge.

Gas mask factories are closed and peach stones are no longer collected. One of the world's nightmares is gone, let us hope, forever.

Settlement of the varied questions that will come before the international peace conference will require a commission of Solomon.

People of former monarchies will have a much better appetite for permanent peace after their everyday appetite for food has been appeased.

In the event of a restoration of the railroads to private ownership, some of the returning directors will feel as much mystified as Rip Van Winkle.

If the Germans are hungry we ought to be firm with them and send them some of the victory bread Friend Wife baked during the late unpleasantness.

It seems to be the happy notion of the Russian bolshevik that by abolishing the producer they can solve all the troubles of the harassed consumer.

It is now officially announced at Tokyo that the recent riots in Japan were caused by the extravagances of the rich. The rich in all lands please take notice.

Life is full of contrasts. While there are thousands of persons here "just crazy to go to France" there are thousands of Americans over there as eager to get away.

It is said there is no precedent by which the Kaiser can be punished as an individual malefactor for his crimes. But this is a time not so much to study precedents as to create them.

A supreme court jury has awarded a literary and theatrical agent $108,339 as a commission for aiding a celebrated movie star. Evidently it costs something to travel the pathway of flickering fame.

After all the excitement we have had in the last year and a half it is going to be difficult for the people to become as aroused as they used to over speakership contests in legislatures.

Demobilization has its dreeds. More than one soldier will have to go into the kitchen to show his admiring relatives his newly acquired skill in cooking; and, if he makes a hit, he will never be released.

BLOOD POISONING

Administer Zero Oils and Safe First Aid Treatment.

How often lockjaw and blood poisoning result from the neglect of a simple sore or cut? Hamman's Zero Oils is a safe and effective first aid treatment. It is a powerful antiseptic and should be applied immediately to wounds of this kind to prevent danger of infection.

It is soothing and healing and quickly drives out pain and inflammation in cases of sprains, bruises, cuts, burns, bites and stings. Just as reliable too for stiff neck, sore feet, sore sores, canker sores, earache and toothache.

Notice

In the future no order of handbills will be printed in this office for less than $2.50. This is the minimum amount that will justify the labor and material necessary for turning out any order of handbills, regardless of how small in size or few in number. The end of the war has had no effect on the paper and type market. A few days ago we received a shipment of paper and printing material in which almost every item on the invoice was billed at a higher price than we have ever paid before.

An Interesting Topic.
"Junior" is an only child and naturally appreciates the attention bestowed upon him. But his mother had hoped he was innocently unconscious of his popularity until one evening when a neighbor had happened in for a chat. "Junior" had gone to bed, but presently his shrill little pipe broke into their conversation:
"Mother!"
"Yes, Junior."
"Talking 'bout me?"

Too Weak by Far.
Catherine had requested, as a special birthday treat, that she be allowed to have coffee for breakfast. Her mother, not at all pleased with the idea, was diluting it generously. Catherine peered over into the cup, and then exclaimed in great disappointment:
"Goodness! Don't I get any of the brown?"

Favorite Topics.
"Did you ever stop to think how little conversation there would be if people never talked about themselves?"
"Oh, yes. But if people never talked about themselves or other people, either, we wouldn't need a universal language. We could get along well by making signs."

Help!
Customer (to waiter who had brought him a beefsteak very much underdone)—Waiter, just send for the butcher, will you?
Waiter—Why, sir?
Customer—This steak doesn't seem to be quite dead yet!

FOOL AND HIS MONEY

"Being a fool is no disgrace."
"Isn't that?"
"What's the trouble, then?"
"The money is always on the other side."

Do Not.
Do not be a quitter
With fear within your heart;
And do not be a starter
Of things that should not start.
—Judge.

Hard to Please.
"I fail to see anything in this show."
"But the chorus is shapely."
"True, yet the chorus can neither sing nor dance."
"Don't you think the comedian is funny?"
"He might be if he tried to play 'Hamlet.'"
—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Branching Out.
"Mrs. Dubwaine is always talking about enlarging her sphere of influence."
"What does she mean by that?"
"I suppose she means moving in a larger circle by attending more club meetings."

Best Move.
"This dollar diplomacy—"
"Yes?"
"What is it, anyway?"
"Slipping your wife a case note when you haven't got an excuse handy."

Literally Understood.
"It's a cold world!" sighed the melancholy citizen.
"Yes," replied Miss Cayenne. "But don't you think that now and then we ought to talk about something besides the weather and the cost of fuel?"

She Explains.
"You never wind your wrist watch."
"Well, what of it?"
"What's the use of wearing a wrist watch that keeps no time?"
"I wear it as a bracelet as well as a watch," said the girl.

Also, When She's Absent.
"Pa, when do you call an old woman an old hen?"
"When she has become hopelessly set in her ways, my son."

A Hard Fought Legal Battle.

The United States vs. Willy Long-fellow Tennyson Brown. Cause, the writing of poetry.

A play in the form of a mock trial was a new feature for Wrangell and consequently when last Tuesday evening the young people connected with St. Philip's Church and Gymnasium put on a play of that nature, the house was crowded, quite a large number being compelled to stand.

The play was, in a sense, a double satire. When the witnesses were sworn to tell the truth and nothing of the truth, and when the jury was sworn to try the case paying no attention to the law and evidence, and when one witness interrupted a lawyer by saying "See here, you are getting me all mixed up; I am giving the testimony just as the lawyer taught me," was it not a satire on court proceedings as they are sometimes conducted.

But there was even a keener satire than this. The accused was supposed to have been a wealthy young man who had gone to a city, and come back with an idea that he would start a new cult where everyone would be writing poetry. Girls go crazy over him, and even families are broken up, and many other disastrous results follow which cause his arrest, trial and conviction.

The lawyers in the case were young men very learned in the law. Carl Carlson and Vernon Myers represented the state; Alfred Royalty and George Gunderson the defendant. They fought so very hard and cleverly for the defendant that even the judge "who sits up high and bosses it over the crowd" was in doubt as to what the results would be until the jury brought in its decision of guilty.

The jury, consisting of Eugene Wheeler, John Coulter, James Wheeler and Henry Ronning, was in a sense typical, "not too learned." One of them did not understand what the words law and evidence meant, considering the nebula hypothesis as a graft, and so with the others.

Vernon Myers opened for the state. With great vehemence he denounced the accused, and spoke of the havoc caused by the fellow sitting there. Carl Carlson most cleverly imitated the old lawyer. He was now stern with his witnesses, and again he would disarm their opposition with his genial suavity. The manner of his closing speech was masterly, and it had much influence on the jury.

Neil Grant, as marshal and the indignant head of a home which had been broken up, did his part well. Ralph Davis as Mr. Armstrong, who also had lost a wife through this new poetry cult, did some detective work on his own behalf and actually caught the accused writing poetry. Fred Gunderson was the great detective Burns, who had found the accused singing his own poetry.

John Grant and Edward Loftus were the "saucy kids" and did the act to perfection.

There were two lady characters, Margaret Shaffner as the old maid aunt who nearly overwhelmed the court, to the great delight of the court room. Ruth Lindman as the demure artist of the impressionist order, and admirer of the accused acted her part to perfection. She received a beautiful bouquet of camouflage roses after she had finished her testimony.

The accused read his testimony in meter for he deemed it much the sweeter. It was very evident that he could not help writing poetry. The sentence, when the jury found him guilty, was that he be handed over to the marshal who should read to him for at least 15 minutes each day, parts of his own poetry. At the close, the attorney for the state said to his opponents, "Do not take it too hard; appeal the case—he has stacks of money."

The refreshments were provided by St. Philip's Guild, and that always means quality, and everything was quickly disposed of.

The Redmen showed their appreciation by coming up in a body, and the play may later on be repeated for their benefit.

The gross receipts were over $80, which was far beyond expectation.

Wrangell is now without an express office. The Wells Fargo closed their office here the past week. It is reported that the local agent refused to continue unless he received more pay.

Ed Grigwire's dandruff treatment is the best on the market. Try it and be convinced.

Through an oversight which the Sentinel greatly regrets the name of Judge Wm. G. Thomas was omitted from the list of Council of Defense members which appeared in the report of the Roosevelt memorial service published last week. Judge Thomas is vice chairman of the organization and one of the Council's most active members. He did more than any one else toward getting up the Roosevelt memorial service, which was most befitting the occasion.

Have your watch repaired at George Cowan's, in the Uhler Block.

Capt. Chas. E. Binklev and bride (nee Peggy Brown) arrived last Friday from San Francisco, and have since been receiving the congratulations of their many friends. They have rented a suite of rooms in the Wrangell Hospital Building.

Calhoun's Slayer Commits Suicide

Peter Jackson, the Native who murdered U. S. Deputy Marshal Clyde Calhoun, committed suicide at 7 o'clock last Friday morning by shooting himself.

It is reported that Jackson had been drunk and disorderly to the extent that a complaint was sworn out against him and he was arrested on a charge of rape. The prisoner had had trouble with his family and had been sulking for two days without eating. He was also wearing wet clothes. After his arrest a party who saw the prisoner several times during the day reminded him each time that he would be almost sure to get a life sentence in the penitentiary. At 6:30 in the evening the prisoner trumped up an excuse to ask to go aboard his boat. Calhoun granted his request and accompanied him to the boat, but permitted him to go aboard alone. The deputy was walking to and fro on the beach waiting for the prisoner when Jackson appeared with a 30-30 calibre rifle and shot Calhoun twice in the back, killing him instantly.

News of the murder spread like wildfire, and Natives and whites united in an effort to capture the murderer. Jackson sought refuge in the homes of different Natives but was turned away each time although he was armed and desperate. On Friday morning Jackson saw that he was surrounded, and realizing that escape was hopeless, he committed suicide. He placed his rifle in a standing position and bending over it, pulled the trigger. The bullet entered the abdomen, coming out through the left shoulder.

The following letter received from a resident of Craig relates to the terrible tragedy:

Craig, Alaska, Feb. 16, 1919. The Wrangell Sentinel, Wrangell, Alaska.

In justice to the residents of the Native town of Klawock I wish to state through the columns of your worthy paper that the residents of Klawock, after the shooting of Deputy Marshal Calhoun, spared neither labor nor money to assist the white people in the capture of his murderer.

Without exception the Natives gave every assistance to the white deputies and absolutely denied support of any kind to the fugitive.

Peter Jackson had been denied the privilege of living in Klawock but was permitted by the Native authorities to move into his wife's house after a solemn promise to be good. The Natives could not know the dastardly crimes that were to follow but from the time the murder of the marshal was made known until the shot that announced the criminal's self-destruction there was no thought except to bring the criminal to justice.

I believe the Natives of Klawock are rapidly approaching the time when the old tribal, feudal ideas will have entirely disappeared to give place to a peace-loving, law-abiding citizenship.

M. L. BONHAM.

The Country Church Is the Nation's Bulwark. Go to Church.

LARGE percentage of the big men of this big country come from small country towns. Most of the REAL BIG MEN never forget their boyhood days when they went to the SMALL COUNTRY CHURCH. The simple lessons that were taught there have GUIDED THEM THROUGH LIFE. Their lives have been clean. Clean living made for their success.

When the GO TO CHURCH campaign was launched these men took a commendable interest in it. By attending church they set a SPLENDID EXAMPLE to the careless and indifferent. When a real big man GOES TO CHURCH the act is MORE POWERFUL THAN A DOZEN SERMONS. Clear thinking people are quick to see that there is something REALLY WORTH WHILE AND SUBLIME in the church.

THE COUNTRY CHURCH LAID THE FOUNDATION FOR THE LATER SUCCESS IN LIFE. READ THE LIVES OF THE GREAT MEN OF THE COUNTRY. THEY TAKE PRIDE IN RECALLING THEIR EARLY RELIGIOUS TRAINING—THE FINE IDEAS THAT WERE INCULCATED WHEN THEY WERE YOUNG. SURELY THEY PUT TO SHAME SOME OF THE SCOFFERS AT RELIGION AMONG THE FLIPPANT YOUTHS OF THIS MATERIAL AGE. YOU CAN COUNT ON YOUR FINGERS THE NUMBER OF SUCCESSFUL MEN WHO DO NOT GO TO CHURCH.

The plea of some who have fallen away from the church is that they are TOO BUSY to attend church. Yet men whose time is WORTH $100 OR MORE AN HOUR do not begrudge an hour or more for God on the Sabbath.

No man is too busy to attend church. If he is successful he should GO TO CHURCH to thank God for his success. If he is struggling he should ask God's help.

GO TO CHURCH NEXT SUNDAY.
